

Volunteer for Sampson Creek Preserve bird survey

Contact: Ellie Armstrong at eea@KlamathBird.org

Join the Klamath Bird Observatory's citizen science project on the Sampson Creek Preserve.

This project offers something for all birders from easy birding walks to adventurous off-trail hiking as well as guided owl surveys. Either way you will be surrounded by beautiful views and plenty of birds. We are looking for participants who are interested in regular surveys and also those who can come occasionally.

- A training event will be held on April 15th (you can still participate if you can't make the training).
- Monthly morning surveys will take place throughout the year.
- Participation will include some walking and/or hiking, recording all birds observed by sight and/or sound, and entering and submitting your findings into eBird Northwest.
- This project will also offer guided night surveys to inventory the local owl population.

To sign up or for more information, contact Ellie Armstrong at eea@KlamathBird.org or 541-201-0866 ext. 5. Visit eBird Northwest's Citizen Science page for additional information.
